BACKGROUND

Longstanding restrictions on the movement of people and goods to and from Gaza have undermined the living conditions of 1.8 million Palestinians in Gaza. Many of the current restrictions, originally imposed by Israel in the early 1990s, were intensified after June 2007, following the Hamas takeover of Gaza and the imposition of a blockade. Though there has been a welcome increase in the movement of people and goods from Gaza, these restrictions continue to reduce access to livelihoods, essential services and housing, disrupt family life, and undermine people’s hopes for a secure and prosperous future. The situation has been compounded by the restrictions imposed since June 2013 by the Egyptian authorities at Rafah Crossing, which had become the main crossing point used by Palestinian passengers in the Gaza Strip, given the above restrictions on the Israeli-controlled crossings.

RAFAH CROSSING

- Rafah crossing between Gaza and Egypt opened on two out of 31 scheduled days during May 2016.
- The crossing has been closed since 24 October 2014, except for 44 days.
- There are at least 30,000 Palestinians registered and waiting to leave Gaza via Rafah, including approximately 9,500 medical cases and 2,700 students.
- Prior to the closure, a monthly average of 4,000 people crossed Rafah for health-related reasons.

- Rafah commercial crossing opened on two days, allowing 150 truckloads of construction materials to enter Gaza.
- On 23 May, Israeli authorities lifted the ban on the entry of cement for the private sector in Gaza, imposed since 03 April.
- 18% of the truckloads that entered in May were designated for humanitarian aid agencies.
- 5,207 of the truckloads carried construction materials, constituting the largest category of imports (50%). These included 1,012 truckloads of materials entered via the Gaza Reconstruction Mechanism (GRM), defined by Israel as ‘dual use’ items.
